Foreword

It's a pleasure to be invited to write a few words about the Sligo Jazz Project. It's even more of a pleasure to be allowed to come back here regularly, either to observe or to take part in the teaching and the jam-sessions. And, if you understand my own enthusiasm, imagine what it's like to hear from students describing their experience of the SJP, using words like 'amazing' and 'magical'. It's easy to know why many of these students come back more than once to soak up the atmosphere again.

Of course, it's not just an atmosphere – it's a heady mix of information and of the active challenge to use the information yourself, plus the stimulus of seeing fellow students audibly improve over the course of a few days. Not forgetting the bonus of hearing top-class musicians (both tutors and visiting artists) at close quarters in the evening concert series. Founded in 2005 by bassist Eddie Lee with a small group of local friends, the Project has grown exponentially to become a major event, not only by Irish standards but in the context of jazz worldwide. I envy anyone about to experience it for the first time.

Celebrating 10 Years

Sligo Jazz Project is delighted to celebrate 10 years of world-class jazz performance and education in another exciting and eclectic programme of events. Our summer school has a 40%+ return rate of participants, that is at least 40% of those attending come back at least once. Sligo is proud to host a world-class event in terms of education and inspiration. Each year we all get the "if only I could bottle this" sense of pure joy about the week. This year is shaping up to be our biggest summer school to date, so the core audience at every festival concert will be a very special 100+ bunch of passionate music lovers, something that provides a unique, heady atmosphere unlike any other Irish jazz festival.

To mark this tenth year I would like to pay tribute to the men who, back in 2005, were responsible for founding Sligo Jazz Project with me. Without my friends Jim Meehan, Felipe Carbonell and Eddie McFarlane, very simply, this would not be "one of the most important events in the jazz calendar" as described in the Irish Times.

I would like to thank all of our funders, sponsors, friends and patrons, national and local, who supported us over these great years, especially to Eileen and Ray Monahan. To Marie and all at the Hawk's Well Theatre, your support has taken this event to another level over the past three or four years. It is this kind of creative partnership that for me epitomizes the spirit of Sligo's thriving arts scene.

This year's festival displays our signature variety, from the ethereal middle eastern sounds of world music giant Dhafer Youssef to arguably the UK's finest jazz singer, Liane Carroll, with two time Grammy winning US saxophonist Ernie Watts, Dublin City Jazz Orchestra and a veritable international modern jazz "supergroup" in The Impossible Gentlemen thrown in for funky good measure. Our Guest-of-Honour is American bassist Chuck Rainey, one of the most recorded musicians in modern music history. Watch out for several performances from Chuck during the week. All in all, there's something for everyone on this very special year for us.

Eddie Lee
Artistic Director, Sligo Jazz Project

Dhafer Youssef - Oud, Voice
Philip Donkin - Double Bass
Kristjan Randalu - Piano
Ferenc Nemeth - Drums

One of the highlights of a stellar cast at the International jazz Day webcast concert in Paris in April which included Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter, Al Jarreau and Annie Lennox et al, Tunisian Oud player, vocalist and composer Dhafer Youssef is truly a rising star. Coming from a long line of muezzins, mastering vocal performance is his heritage. Seduced by jazz and other genres like Indian music, combined with his Arab heritage and Mediterranean groove, Youssef creates a sound mixture that is truly exalting. His interest in vocal undulations and the resonance of sounds inspired Youssef to experiment with his voice and to use it as an instrument. Without forgetting the artistic identity that he forged through his experience and permanent search for sonorities, Dhafer Youssef carries on in transcending genres. Amongst his musical output are appearances on James Horner's impressive soundtrack to the Amazing Spiderman movie. Dhafer Youssef and his inspired quartet will perform music from his latest, highly acclaimed creation "Birds Requiem", a very personal album at a turning point of the artist's life.

Gwilym Simcock - Piano

Adam Nussbaum - Drums

Steve Rodby - Bass

Mike Walker - Guitar

Four renowned gentlemen form this US/UK quartet, Sligo Jazz Project's very first "Band-in-Residence": Two Americans, bassist Steve Rodby and drummer Adam Nussbaum are joined by British guitarist Mike Walker and virtuoso pianist Gwilym Simcock. Individually they have performed with some of the biggest names in the jazz world such as Pat Metheny, Tony Bennett and the Brecker Brothers. Collectively they are "one of the best combos on the planet" according to the Toledo Blade. A week-long stint at Sligo Jazz Project's international summer school and festival follows their major European tour earlier this year, so we can expect a tight, virtuosic and powerful modern ensemble.

If only we were able to have them every year! And this year is more special than ever, with special guest, two-time Grammy Award winner Ernie Watts, one of the most versatile and prolific saxophone players in music. It has been more than fifty years since he first picked up a saxophone, and from age sixteen on he has been playing professionally. Featured on over 500 recordings by artists ranging from Cannonball Adderley to Frank Zappa, Watts always exhibits his unforgettable trademark sound. "I see music as the common bond having potential to bring all people together in peace and harmony. All things in the physical world have vibration; the music I choose to play is the energy vibration that touches a common bond in people. I believe that music is God singing through us, an energy to be used for good."
